2014 Year in Review

Transformation was the watchword of the year at the Martha's Vineyard Museum in 2014. We are building a new future while further developing the best of the traditions of the past. Exhibitions and collections remain the bread-and-butter of who we are and what we do, but we continue to recognize the need to do things in a very different way in order to meet our important goals for service to community, and for growth and change.

In one of our Messenger newsletters last year, we quoted the March 2014 New York Times (Museum section): "... in recent decades, all over the country, traditional historical societies have been elaborately re-configured. History has broadened and often deepened; museums have become more adventurous and often more ambitious." We continue to follow this model and see that it is working for us.

In 2014 we saw record numbers in areas that are meaningful in our on-going transformation, both in people served or benefitted and in financial performance. Membership reached nearly 1,000 and for the first time since 2003, and only the second time in institutional history, member dues surpassed $100,000. For the first time ever, our combined admissions of lighthouses—Gay Head and Edgartown primarily—and Edgartown campus topped 40,000 visitors and $150,000 in revenue. In Library admissions and inquiries, and in volunteer hours, we saw 10% or more increases; and while our number of events decreased by about 20%, our event attendance increased by almost 20%. We are indeed moving forward on our quest to be a more community-centric and a more contemporary-minded institution: being "more things to more people, more of the time."

These statistics demonstrate that the strategic plan that we put in place in 2012 is working. The Board and staff recognized then, and continue to re-affirm each year, that to undertake the transformation represented by the Marine Hospital project demands that we attract new audiences, make new friends and demonstrate new energy. We are doing this and need to remain patient. It will take time. We need to stay the course in order to reap the benefits. The comprehensive capital campaign moved ahead in 2014, admittedly at a slower pace than we would have liked or planned. At the same time significant progress was made on four critical fronts.

First, the cataloging of our collections, a task whose completion is critical before we relocate, was brought into the home stretch. With grants from many Vineyard Community Preservation Committees and the Mellon Foundation's funding via the Council on Information and Library Resources (CLIR), we will finish before mid-year 2015. This will allow greater access and immediate use of our collections for research and for use in exhibitions. In fact, some of the shows listed here were literally made possible or greatly enhanced by this progress.

Second, the education programs at the Museum are growing by leaps and bounds. Under the direction of Education Director Ann DuCharme, who celebrated her first anniversary with us in Nov. 2014, our Vineyard schools programs provided nearly 150 classes in academic year 2013-14. In addition, the Museum collaborated with the local chapter of Head Start to promote readiness of pre-school children from low income families. Another program, reaching out to elders at various senior gathering centers and called “Museum Conversations,” is also attracting a core of docents to leverage the department’s limited human resources. These innovations in education were funded by mostly internal resources, but they did attract support from the Permanent Endowment for Martha’s Vineyard and from the Martha’s Vineyard Savings Bank Charitable Fund.

Third, and clearly related to our education department expansion and success in the past few years, was the incredible news that the Museum received from The National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH): NEH awarded us the largest challenge grant possible of $500,000—you can’t ask for more—to support an education endowment fund. When announced in December 2014, the amount represented more than 60% of all funding given to Massachusetts institutions. We now have up to five years to attract $1.5 million, as the challenge is 3-to-1. This total $2 million education endowment represents slightly less than 50% of the $4.5 million of endowment funds designated in our capital campaign plans. It simply means that the income from this portion will be restricted for education, always an integral part of our primary mission. In terms of transformation, this can be compared to our current endowment funds of just over $100,000; clearly major progress.

Fourth, and finally, we dramatically increased our number of relationships. Membership totals noted earlier are only one measure of this. The increased number of members coming to our events suggests that we have more frequent users, making the Museum a more significant part of their routine. Our Evening of Discovery annual benefit in late June 2014 was a record sell-out and we had to provide a bigger tent to accommodate the 380 old and new patrons—in June 2015 we pushed that record still further and were over 410.

While taking great strides on programming and patronage last year, we continued to collect, seeking out art, objects, and manuscripts that enrich our mission. As is the norm, almost all of these accessions are generous gifts from individuals (see p. 16-17 for a complete list, including 46 oral histories). One of the more visually compelling of these gifts—a series of 1970-90s posters from the Edgartown store “Tashtego”—will be the basis of an exhibition in the fall of 2015. We cannot thank our donors enough for trusting us to steward their treasures.

2014 was both a challenging year and a year of progress. Many operating advances noted above will translate into our keeping pace with the progress of cash and pledges needed for the Marine Hospital relocation and transformation. We have the incentives in place—through private gifts and public funding—to have substantive conversations. Our Board, volunteers, staff, members and friends are the constituencies that are most dear to us and form the foundation of our future. Thank you in advance for your help in moving forward to a bright future.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth A. Beim

- (1) The Museum received intentions to give through Letters of Intent or pledges with certain conditions of $541,298 in 2014, and $1,814,292 in 2013, in addition to the contributions and pledges raised in the Comprehensive Capital Campaign as shown in the schedule.

2014 Treasurer's Report

In 2014 the Museum had strong growth of almost 19% in revenues from operating activities, including a 40% increase in membership dues. As in recent years, operating expenses were managed well to budget objectives, and overall expenses grew by 7% over 2013. Included in these expenses was a 2.5% increase in payroll, benefits and taxes which is the largest expense category. The only expense area of significant growth was spending to support the rapid membership increase and fundraising efforts. With this support from fundraising, and the portion of the comprehensive campaign planned for operations, the Museum achieved a surplus of $5,190 for the year.

The comprehensive campaign to support the Museum's strategic plan moved steadily forward in 2014. As described in prior years, the campaign is comprehensive because it is targeted to fund a range of needs -- funds to develop and relocate to the Marine Hospital site; funds to support operations and transition costs during the years leading to relocation; and funds to build an endowment as a source of operational funding in future years. During 2014 the Museum raised almost $0.9 million in contributions and pledges and received intentions to give of an additional $0.5 million through letters of intent or pledges with certain specified conditions (such as matching). 2014 was the first year that annual giving efforts were fully combined with the comprehensive campaign, and one of the key expenditures for the year was operational support normally provided by this annual giving.

In 2014 the Museum continued to make some investments in the Marine Hospital at the planned new site to maintain the structural integrity of the building during this period of transition and planning -- a number of windows were rebuilt in an historically appropriate way and approximately two-thirds of the roof of the frame building was replaced. Also, with receipt of a $500,000 grant for endowment over five years from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the associated 3-to-1 match for these funds, the Museum's endowment will grow sooner than expected, and the Museum has started its planning to manage and take advantage of the increased endowment.

As stated before, the Museum is undertaking these transformative steps with key financial strengths. In addition to our invaluable collections, we have no debt and we own two campuses -- one in Edgartown and the other in Vineyard Haven -- each with substantial real estate value.

It is an exciting and challenging period for the Museum, and we have great belief in the value a relocated, stronger Museum can bring to the island community. Working together -- members, Board, patrons, volunteers, staff -- we strongly believe we will be able to make it happen. Many thanks for your continued support.

2014 Museum Volunteers

Over 165 volunteers dedicated over 3,800 hours to assist with the library, visitor services, curatorial projects, education projects, oral history, special events, lighthouses, and other areas of Museum activities. Our Museum, like so many others, depends on volunteers to fulfill our mission. They can be justly proud of what they accomplished in 2014. We thank them for all their hard work and dedication.
