Civil War and Martha's Vineyard

By Marian Halperin

Descriptive Summary

Repository: Martha's Vineyard Museum

Call No.

Title: Civil War Collection

Creator:

Quantity: 2 cubic feet

Abstract: The Civil War Collection (1861-1865) focuses on diaries, letters, service lists, and information related to individual local servicemen. A sizeable section is related to an attempt at correcting state records to reflect the home town of individual volunteers rather than the town where they were recruited, in an effort to establish a town's meeting of its quota of service men. The majority of letters (and three diaries housed elsewhere) were written by an Edgartown soldier, Charles M. Vincent.

Historical Note

This collection was assembled from many sources. The material relates either to individual Martha's Vineyard servicemen or to the ways in which the towns of Martha's Vineyard responded to recruitment, quotas, bounties, and other problems associated with recruiting men for the war. The largest collection of diaries and letters was written by Charles M. Vincent (1843-1881), from his enlistment in August 1862 at age 18 to spring 1865. Material post -865 connected with the war and other related topics are also included.

Scope and Content Note

Series I contains original papers, diaries and letters, associated with individual servicemen. Series II contains official papers, separated where possible between Army and Navy, pertaining to individuals, most of whom were from Martha's Vineyard. Series III is comprised of papers and printed lists of servicemen produced in individual Island towns and concludes with letters and lists created in relation to attempts to obtain changes in assignment of individual servicemen from their place of enlistment to their home town in order to meet assigned quotas. Series IV contains official government forms and directives. Series V contains material related to Martha's Vineyard in the war, including histories of local participation; organizations, both national and local, that aided service men; the development of bounties by individual towns to attract recruits; and the draft that was established to fill quotas. Series VI Pamphlets and Books, contains such items as are not located under pertinent subject matter. Series VII, Miscellaneous, contains Civil War material not specific to Martha's Vineyard such as Confederate papers, a Negro passport issued in Richmond, Civil War music, papers related to specific battles, and newspaper and magazine articles.
