Series and Subseries Arrangement

Series I: Diaries

Series II: Photographs

Historical Note:

The collection consists primarily of daily "Logs" of Harris family activities during their annual summer visits to the Island between June 1908 to September 1919. The diaries serve as an important insight into middle-class visitors to the Island in the prewar years.

The diaries or logs contain the observations of the immediate members of the Harris family. Each of the contributors was assigned a pen name. For example, the "Captain" was Charles A. Harris, the "Mate" was Olivia Harris or ODH, and the "Crew" were the Harris children (Nathaniel and Catherine). It is a delightful account of the everyday activities and adventures of a family living in a tent in Menemsha near the Bight. This is a suburban family who reside near Boston during the winter and who, in the summer, live without conveniences. Their luxury is the beauty and abundance of nature. Each day some activity is described from sailing, swimming, lobstering and fishing, to hiking, and berry picking.

Scope and Content Note:

Photocopies of diaries kept by the Charles A. Harris family. The originals have been retained by the family. The diaries were bound volumes. The Museum only holds the photocopies of these diaries as well as photo reproductions of family photographs.
