2021 Year In Review

Against this backdrop of uncertainty, a lingering pandemic, and mask mandates the Martha's Vineyard Museum staff and Board approached 2021 with optimism, laying the groundwork for the best possible outcome while also being prepared to pivot if necessary. The extra planning paid off and by year's end we had a new Executive Director, a robust education program with the Island schools, new exhibitions, and dozens of programs. Additionally, we presented the Martha's Vineyard Medal to Vernon Jordan (posthumously), Nancy Vietor, and Dick Burt and held a successful Evening of Discovery gala.

Like 2020, our priority was serving the Island community and being disciplined fiscal stewards. As restrictions gradually relaxed, MVM welcomed 15,028 visitors to our Vineyard Haven campus and 12,281 visitors to the Edgartown Lighthouse. 1,332 children attended educational programs both in person and virtually. The Museum was free to all visitors during school vacation in the spring and we boosted our on-line offerings.

Tuesday nights heralded the return of the Art Cliff Diner food truck. Wednesdays were "Pay What You Can" for all visitors. Saturday morning yoga with Yogijay returned, with practitioners spread safely apart on the Museum's front lawn. By July, Music in the Courtyard concerts were back with Willy Mason and Jemima James, the Dock Dance Band, and Johnny Hoy and the Bluefish.

It was heartening to see that MVM could continue to count on broad support from all corners of the community. This included the completion of the newly installed and much enhanced Cooke House Gardens in Edgartown, complete with a grand opening, and completion of the East Chop Lighthouse reinforcement work, thanks to the Town of Oak Bluffs and the voters who approved the use of Community Preservation Act funds.

2021 also had moments tinged with sadness. In March, we learned that Vernon Jordan had passed away. Vernon was a staunch supporter of the Museum and a longtime friend of MVM Board Chair Sheldon Hackney, to whom he presented the Martha's Vineyard Medal in 2013. Then, in November, we lost June Manning, a Tribal elder from Aquinnah and a beloved member of the Museum's Board.

The work of a museum is deep, diverse, and demanding, and takes many directions simultaneously. We welcomed five new Sheldon Hackney Fellows in the Museum's ongoing program for training college interns specializing in museum work and benefitted from over 1,000 volunteer hours.

No corner of the Museum escaped the expansive imagination of the curatorial staff. In 2021 MVM opened 17 exhibitions in the Museum galleries. Some were major, others were smaller, but their sheer variety was impressive. Topics ranged from African American women artists ("Work of the Soul") and abolitionist Reverend William Jackson ("For God and Liberty") to climate-related adaptation "Change: Stories from the Anthropocene," and the remarkable work of Richard Lee, complete with animated and laser projections on the Marine Hospital façade, thanks to a partnership with PathwaysARTS and Jon Baer. The Saltzman Cabinet of Curiosities exhibited a selection of the Museum's scrimshaw, some of which had only rarely been shown before. And Museum visitors were greeted by Dan Waters' gigantic 4-by-5-foot portraits of Islanders, which changed each month.

Online exhibitions, long in the planning, became a reality in 2021 — and the timing couldn't have been more perfect for sharing MVM content remotely. By year's end, there were three online exhibitions that had their origins as exhibits in MVM galleries.

Despite the pandemic, 31 new oral histories were added to the collection. Social media grew as a way to share oral histories, with 46 new video pieces created for sharing on the MVM YouTube channel.

A smorgasbord of programs managed to fill the calendar of a year that started out in doubt. We featured programs on the ordeals caused by the impact of colonization of the Wampanoag, how history and our collections can provide clues about how nature will change our Island, cooking, and PRIDE across the Islands.

There was an Historic Cemetery walking tour series, and a celebration of a new poetry anthology in the Rose Styron Garden. We debuted a short film called “On the Vineyard — Summer Vacation in 1940 and 1941 with the James Family,” And held an outdoor screening of Stanley Nelson’s “A Place of Our Own.”

Clearly history was on people's minds, because the Research Library fielded over 900 inquiries — the highest number on record. Bow Van Riper, our research librarian also provided a sold-out eight-week MVM education intensive titled “Introduction to Martha's Vineyard History.” We also produced a monthly series inspired by MVM's permanent exhibition “One Island, Many Stories” in which Bow talked with a different member of our Island community whose work engaged with one of the exhibition's themes: escaping, changing, voyaging, belonging, creating, fishing and farming. The list of programs grew and grew as 2021 took shape!

MVM has always found strength in partnerships with other organizations, and 2021 was full of such fruitful collaborations. In one highlight, celebrating Black History Month, MVM worked with the Oak Bluffs Library, League of Women Voters of MV, the NAACP of Martha's Vineyard, and ASALH's MV Branch to present “Music, Art and the Black Family,” a virtual event hosted by keynote speaker Carole Copeland Thomas. In another collaborative effort with the Yard, Company SBB // Stefanie Batten Bland, an intercontinental dance-theatre company, performed “Embarqued: Stories of Soil,” an installation-based dance-theater work steeped in Island history. Batten Bland came across the MV African American Heritage Trail during her first residency at The Yard in 2016, and it inspired her new work based on research that included the archives of MVM.

In short, 2021 turned out far better than anybody expected. Thanks to a forward-thinking Board and staff and an open-hearted community, the Martha's Vineyard Museum has gained new perspectives and new allies, even in a time of adversity. If history teaches us anything, it's that friends and neighbors are brought closer by shared experiences, and we are thankful to have shared 2021 side-by-side with the many communities of Martha's Vineyard!

Sincerely,

2021 Treasurer's Report

2021 was a year for conservative management, taking stock, and setting the Museum's course for a thriving and sustainable future.

Budgeting for the year was a challenge due to the lingering effects of Covid-19 and its accompanying uncertainties. Tough decisions were made such as reducing retirement benefit contributions for staff (restored at year-end), delaying website upgrades, and reducing marketing and landscaping expenses. Careful planning was followed up with close monitoring of results by senior management and the Finance Committee throughout the year. We are pleased that the budget worked well and that the Museum ended the year positive to budget!

In January, the Museum received a second round of Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) funds from the federal government in the amount of $261,613. This program provided forgivable loans to organizations to fund employee retention during the pandemic. All required stipulations were met. The loan was forgiven and per accounting guidelines recorded as a grant in our financial statements.

Admissions were up significantly from 2020 and the Museum held the Evening of Discovery, its signature fundraising event, later in the summer to take advantage of declining pandemic infections. Memberships were down somewhat as were those of most cultural institutions nationwide. It is anticipated that lapsed memberships will be renewed as people become more comfortable in public spaces and return to the Museum in person.

In 2021, the Museum was fortunate to receive just over $690,000 in donations for the Annual Fund and $870,468 towards completing the building campaign. We are grateful for the strong backing evidenced by these gifts which are key to supporting the Museum through the transition of growth and the trials of the pandemic.

The Endowment benefitted from a strong stock market in 2021 and ended the year at $3,002,156.

During 2021, the Board authorized paying down $800,000 in principal on our Cape Cod 5 loan bringing it to $6,000,000. We also applied, and were subsequently approved, for a $2,000,000 Economic Injury Disaster Loan (EIDL) from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA). These 30-year loans were made available to organizations harmed economically during the pandemic and carry a 2.75% interest rate with no payments required for the first 30 months. As of July 2022, the funds from the SBA have been received and used to reduce the Cape Cod 5 loan which has been renegotiated to move forward at favorable terms with a $4,000,000 principal. Although the new combination of loans represents a more manageable debt load, the Board continues to prioritize repayment of debt as part of the Museum's overall financial model.

The 2022 budget was developed looking back to 2019 for information and inspiration. Uncertainty is still with us but we anticipate more normal levels of activity at the Museum this year. Admissions, memberships, events, sales and fund raising are all areas where growth is planned in addition to a significant increase in rentals implemented with sensitivity to the Museum's neighbors and to the impact on its physical plant.

The Museum is an institution for and about the entire Island. As the Island embraces what the Museum has to offer at the Marine Hospital building in Vineyard Haven, Cooke House & Legacy Gardens in Edgartown, and the Edgartown and East Chop Lighthouses, membership and attendance numbers will continue to expand, and with thoughtful expenditures and continued debt reduction we will ensure strong financial sustainability into the future.
